Another year in the books! From conferences, to trainings, and interviews, Team Kimochis was enjoying every bit of the busy that 2022 brought our way. This year, we're looking forward to reconnecting with some of our Kimochis friends, continuing to provide training opportunities to those who inquire, and improving learning environments by getting Kimochis to as many kids and Educators as we can.

Helping with the Post-Holiday Grind One FREE Resource at a Time!

It's official, winter breaks are over and school is back in session. Are you and your students ready to get back into the daily routine?

Re-establishing classroom routines can be challenging after returning from a long break. If you find yourself helping students with some BIG and hard-to-have feelings as they reacquaint themselves with the school day structure, try posting the Kimochis Mad-O-Meter in a calm area within your space.

This tool reminds us that although feelings such as mad can start out BIG, we have the ability to make them smaller. It also reminds us that we can empower ourselves by choosing what we do when a feeling like mad approaches.
